The Situation in Europe. Comments of Leading Journals.

From the N. Y. Post of Tuesday eve. IS IT THE END OF NAPOLEONISM ? The reign of Napoleon III, seems to be drawing near to a fit and ignominious end. The morning's dispatches from Paris have many signs of increasing dissontent and insuportanties do not appear people; and the authorities do not appear even to try to conceal their fears. In London it is believed that revolution is inminent, and there are rumors that Napoleon has succumbed to the disease, function place has succumbed to the disease, function times' correspondent tells us that parties in France will make the penalty of his ill succession. ontent and insubordination among the

If they do that, they will rid Europe of an unendurable nuisance, and make themselves the benefactors of Every European nation, including the English.

New will the German nation, which are impatiently expecting another great battle between the Prussians and the Frénch to be fought immediately. No doubt the Prussians will press forward with all practicable swiftness. The rapidity of their movements so far has been most exemplary; and with a retreating enemy before them, they will not be like-ly to relax, their speed. But can they lorce the French to fight at a time and place of their own choice, and under great disadvantages? That is the question.

The present design of Louis Napoleon seems to be to make a stand in front of Metz; but he will not be ready to fight until McMahon's corps can come up. That corps is now moving by way of Luneylle and Nancy, a distance of about a handled and fifty miles. It will require a week at least to effect its Junction with Napoleon's a Napoleon's and the standard of Weinerday.

That the nation would put forth extraordinary exertions in order to repel a foreign invasion nobody doubt-ed. The defeat of the grand army has aroused a true patriotic rage, and will put hundreds of thousands of ardent men in the field. But with the martial ardor of the need. But with the markal around the hour is roused a deep-seated grief and disappointment at the failure of the leader who promised a few weeks ago to carry the French eagles in triumph, to Bedin.

France will fight, but she has lost confi-GEO. ADAMS, Cash'r. D. C. LIST, GIBSON LAMB, HOB T MORRISON MENRY K. LIST, JOS. Napoleon's attempt to pacify the tuinuit by sacrificing a general is not likely to, be successful. Whoever planned the campaign, the Emperor and not Gen. Lebeuff is responsible for its adoption, and will ultimately bear the penalty of its failure.

We need hardly point out how fearfully omnious in this hour of disaster and excitement is the appointment of a National Committee, with plenary powers to act in all things concerning the war. all things concerning the war. It makes little difference who may be the original members of this extraordinary body, for if they fail to satisfy the people, the peo-ple will be sure to have them changed. It makes little difference how moderately they enter upon their functions, for if affairs continue to go ill they will be swept along by the torrent of popular in-dignation. We do not believe the Bonaparte dynasty will withstand another de-feat; we question whether it has not already-received its death-blow. The im-pending conflict at Mentz threatens to involve not only the issue of the German war, but the existence of the Napoleonic empire, and the National Committee, which begins its labors as the auxiliary of a threatened despotism, may find itself in a few days the governing power of a revolutionary republic.

The bugle notes of the Prussians may be heard in Paris at any moment, and her victo-rious commanders may be again assem-bled to dictate the terms of peace. Na-poleon as Emperor is a mere cypher in France to-day, and we are told that the only opesition now is who shall first utter. only question now is, who shall first utter the work "abdication?" He has shown himself weak in the only thing in which Napoleons cannot afford to be weak—milrapporcons cannot anora to be wear—military genius. Amblion, tyramy, inhumanity, everything may be pardoned by Frenchmen in a Bonaparte, but military stupidity never. And the Emperor has proved himself so utterly incompetent that

The ministr in the great extremity appeal to the spiri of 1792, and ask the nation to rise and re pel the invader. But where is the leader for whom we are told the millions are clamoring? Evidently not the Napoleon

France under Napoleon has been. The Germans are a peaceable, easily contented, order-loving, Inw-respecting people; they are not warlike, or aggressive, like the French; they comprehend consitutional government, and are essentially a free people. Their success may be regarded as a positive gain to the forces of civilization.

Nor would Europe need to be harmed if Germany should require of France to give back to Italy that Savoy which Napoleon III, treacherously took away, and to restore to the German empire Elsass and Lothringen, which properly belong there with the atile great question which interests us as Americans, and interests the opressed nationalists of Europe. Under the displication of Liberty, France has it within any yet become the triumphant legions of the Hepublic, and carry freedom to half the peoples of Europe. France is as capable of making sacrifices for liberty today as she was one hundred years ago, and the world is as ready and willing to pursue it. "Abdication" are many species to the German empire Elsass and Lothringen, which properly belong there with the action of the control of the property to do great and grant things, and it is by no means impossible or improbable that the defeated armics of the Empire may yet become the triumphant legions of the Hepublic, and carry freedom to half the defeated armics of the Empire may yet become the triumphant legions of the Hepublic, and carry freedom to half the defeated armics of the Empire may yet become the triumphant legions of the Hepublic, and carry freedom to half the defeated armics of the Empire may yet become the triumphant legions of the Hepublic, and carry freedom to half the peoples of Europe. France has it in her power to strike this last grand blow, and save her honor and herself. That she will submit to the degrading terms which Prussian victory would give Prussians the power to impose, while she holds in her hands the destinies of Europé, is not to be appropried to see instant. And thus out of

That the French will undertake, however, to remain at Metz is not certain. We have a report that Napoleon has personally withdrawn to Chalons; and if the Prussians should reach Metz before Mahon, and before the reinforcements can be concentrated which are hurrying thinker from every part of France, the whole army may likewise fall back upon Chalons before making the last effort or repel the invaders. There on the field of the celebrated battle of the Peoples, where the Marne of old ran blood, and the ghosts of the slain continued the ferocious combat in the air, the defeated and dispirited French may renew the struggle, no longer to curb the pretensions of Prussia, but to save their own national existence.

supposing that they succeeded in avoiding a decisive battle until they are ready, there will be no further important fighting before the middle of next week; and when it happens, it will possibly be nearer to the Marne than the Moselle.

From the N. Y. Aribuse of Wednesday.

THE SITUATION IN TARIS.

The dangers which threaten the Emperor on the Moselle are trivial in comparison with the dangers that assail him from the Seine. If, we remember how close is the censorship over telegrams from Paris, how carefully every message which teles. ror and his empire as representing law years Europe will be republican or Cos-sack." Modern scientific inventions and means of enlightenment have put the Cos-the transfer a republic during the present generation.

German unity is but a repetition of Italian unity and Austrian unity, and all these unions of different detachments in each case of the same people are but the initial movements to governments "for the people, by the people, and of the people," as our honest and patriotic republican Lincoln once expressed it. The republic, coln once expressed it. The republic, then, is the winning card for Napoleon. Let him reinstate the republic in France, and according to the American idea of France will fight, but she has lost confidence in her commander. She clausors for a general arming of the people. She pushes aside the incompetent ruler who has led her into disaster, and demands that she shall have the direction of her own destinies. She is persuaded that nothing but bad generalship can defeat her armies, and she is burning with resentment at the cause of her disgrace.

and according to the American idea of popular rights, and the enemies of France, will be at once disarrned. The Germans will radopt the idea, Spain will adopt it, and Austria—which has advanced so far in this direction since Sadowa as to be a wonder to all her neighbors—Austria will follow in the same glorious and declaive revolution. Thus the liberal aspirations own destinies. She is persuaded that nothing but bad generalship can defeat her armies, and she is burning with resentment at the cause of her disgrace. The people, in fact, are fast getting beyond the control of the Government, and although they answer with a lacrity the Emperor's call to arms, they demand at the same time that arms shall be placed in the hands of the whole population, and of his great career war be not considered to his empire and his Prince Imperial, he will be fighting for a "lost causo," and his end, will make him in shistory appear rather as a successful usurper thun as a great ruler by the will of the French people; for their will is not the empire.

Interesting to Chignon Wearers. The Lewiston (Me.) Journal treats the ladies to this pleasant paragraph: "We published a few days since an item referring to insects in the bark switches so generally worn. Some doubted the facts stated. Cur. of the N. Y. Post. * * What I do want to point out is, that women nowadays are shame-fully miseducated for their true place. Every girl must learn to thrum on the piano, when she ought to be learning to sew; she is crammed with a mass of indigestible "ologies," when she ought to be taught the management of servants, and the administration of her household; she is petted and flattered, and coddled, when she ought to be broken into the duties of her life, as young men are broken into the

her life, as young men are broken into the duties of theirs.

The whole education of a young woman nowadays is of the fantastical and glittering sort, meant to enable her to catch a husband; in which, after all, the most "accomplished" very often fail, tor men, whatever their theories may be, have for the unext part sense require to pick out for the most part sense enough to pick out fo their wives women who promise to be useful as well as ornamental.

You yourself, in answer to "Bachelor," complain of the slavery of women to fashion; but what could you expect? From the time a girl can speak till she is married she is sedulously taught that she must make herself charming—as though every healthy young girl were not so, in every healthy young girl were not so, in spite of herself—and that to be charming she must be in the fashion, and, if possible, a little more fashionable than some-body else. She must torture a piano, she must scream in Italian, she must buy her hair of the wig maker, she must give her days to new dresses and her nights to trashy novels. She is encouraged to crave excitement, and to think dull and wearime the quiet duties of home—all because it is fashionable, and if she is not fashion-able she will not get a husband. Suppose now, that our daughters were

Would not we? We do not like dowdies; so far I agree. But the three most charming women I ever knew wore calico, and were, in the opinion of all the men who knew them, never so charming as when they were thus dressed. My wife could

Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now to use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggista, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be death.

Decay and Death.

DR. JOHNSON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate of one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing curse that were ever known. Many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at endden sounds, bashful ness, with a frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life by the consequences of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating life by the consequences of deviating from the path of nature, and findiging in a cortain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating MARRIAGE reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote commbial happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkons to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.
